A Word about Part II of The Book.

This is to be a Picture Book

The Reproductions are already made and assembled Publication is expected in early summer

It will include Documentation of the following

1 The biography of Col. J. Wesley Jones from
"The Memorial Encyclopedia of the Twentieth Century Comprising Memoirs of Men and Women."
1906. Now out of print. In full on Page 19.

" - he studied law in the office of Judge Hardin at Springfield, Illinois, where he became acquainted with Abraham Lincoln." Page 341.

" - in the Indian Wars of the Sierra Nevadas - he received no fewer than six arrow wounds - while bearing dispatches to Brigham Young - he remained in that Mormon dignitary's care until he was recovered." Page 341.

2 A sword presented to him by President Lincoln

3 Two percussion caps picked up after the Baltimore massacre, April 19th 1861.

4 A photograph of Lincoln, presented to him by President Lincoln (# 87 in the Mercere Collection)

5 "A Declamation" and a poem "The Indian's Lament" which were written and delivered by him in 1836-37 when he was 11 1/2 years old, as a student at McKendree College Lanark, Illinois.

His father, The Rev. Wm. P. Jones was one of the founders - 1835-36 - when the Charter was secured establishing McKendree as a College of Higher Education for Women as well as men. One of his fellow students was Mark Twain.

6 North Western Female Seminary, owned and conducted by his father and the four sons, called also "Jones College" Evanston, Illinois. Later taken over by Northwestern University.
See: "Illinois State Historical Society Journal" June 1942. "A Forgotten Evanston Institution: The North Western Female College."
by Dwight F. Ware.

7 A copy of the U. S. Inauguration Program, 1864.
Col. J. Wesley Jones was on the Committee.

8 Civil War Diary written by his father, Rev. Wm. P. Jones, Page 47.
" - April 15th. How sudden and startling the vicissitudes of human life, to Nations as well as individuals. Yesterday was all hilarity and joy. But this alas, is the saddest, the most sorrowful day that has swept over the Nation since the death of Washington. Our great and good, Honorable and loved President Lincoln had fallen on the evening of the 14th by the hand of the assassin. Never perhaps were so many sincere tears of sorrow shed by any nation. Men, women, and children wept as tho they had lost a Father."

9 The Jones "Pantoscope Lecture of the Great Northwest" with pen and ink sketches made from daguerotypes which he had made himself.
The daguerotypes are now preserved in N.S. Archives.
Book of sketches are now preserved in McKendree College Archives. The written lecture was printed in the California Historical Society Quarter 14.

10 Civil War Letters, Civil War Relics, + Letters from Macao, China.

11 Resolutions from the U. S. Volunteer Life Saving Corp. of which he was a founder and of which he was President at the time of his death.

At his Funeral Oration, it was said of him
"This is no ordinary man who lies here to-day."

12 Reproductions also include those of valuable Meeker family records, and many other family papers of importance of our own.

Jones, John Wesley, founder and managing director of the United States Life-Saving Association, famed in his youth as an abolitionist, a pioneer scout who had the distinction of being the first white man to set foot in the Yosemite Valley, afterward prominent as a lawyer, a gallant soldier in the War of the Rebellion, and at one time one of the leading Republicans in the City of Brooklyn, N. Y., was a native of Philadelphia, Pa., where he was born May 3, 1826. He was the son of Rev. Wm. P. Jones and Ursula Lindermann. Through his father, he was descended from one of the oldest and most prominent American families, his forebears having come to this country from Wales at an early date and settled in Delaware County, Pa., where their descendants became distinguished in the affairs of that section, one of them under the direction of Wm. Penn making the original surveys and locating the lines between Pennsylvania and Maryland. The family, it is worthy of note, was of noble origin, tracing lineage from an ancient armorial bearing Welsh house whose quarterings were well-known emblems around which clustered many honorable traditions in connection with the annals of their race. The mother of John Wesley Jones was a native of Switzerland, and was married to Rev. Wm. P. Jones in Philadelphia where the son's early education was received. He afterward attended Mc Kendree College in the west, one of his fellow students being the celebrated humorist Mark Twain, and it was during his collegiate days, that he was a witness to the anti-abolition riots at Alton, Ill. where in Owen Lovejoy lost his life, a martyr to the cause of freedom. Young Jones was himself an ardent advocate of the principles for which Lovejoy fell, and was mobbed twice before he had attained his majority for making speeches opposed to slavery in southwestern Illinois. He refused to be intimidated, however, and continued to speak and labor as an abolitionist, winning distinction in the anti-slavery movement as one of the ablest young men associated therewith. When the discoveries of gold in California caused a rush to be made to that new Eldorado in 1849, he was among the firsts and in the following year, when the fever was at its height, he was placed in command of a hundred and fifty stalwart plainsmen and commissioned as Captain of cavalry by Colonel Sumner, then acting Governor of the Indian Territory, for the purpose of protecting prospectors between Fort Laramie and California, in which responsible capacity he performed many valiant deeds and accomplished work of the greatest value. He was the first United States Superintendent of Census for California, and as such travelled all over the State on the back of a mule, selecting census marshals for each county and otherwise fulfilling the functions of his office.

On one occasion during his journeyings, he was driven by Indians within the boundaries of the Yellowstone Valley, whose rare and remarkable beauties he subsequently described for the first time in the columns of "The Sacramento Union" and the "Alta California", and it is conceded that Colonel Jones was unquestionably the first white man who ever set foot in the now famous and frequently visited valley. Later on, he was prominent and played an active role in the Indian Wars of the Sierra Nevada and was assigned the task of guarding from attack the emigration from the Humboldt Valley to Salt Lake. He received no fewer than six arrow wounds in a battle with the hostile Indians, while bearing dispatches to Brigham Young, but succeeded in his mission and afterward remained in that mormon dominion's care until he recovered from his injuries. Then, turning to more pacific pursuits, he studied law in the office of Judge Hardin at Springfield, Illinois, where he became acquainted with Abraham Lincoln, and obtained admission to the bar, and began the practice of law, in which profession he achieved enviable prominence. His ability was unquestioned, while his eloquence as an orator proved most effective in his pleadings and gained for him a wide reputation as an attorney. He also became interested in railroad building and figured as an influential factor in the development of American transportation facilities. At the outbreak of the civil war, he was prompt in offering his services to the government, becoming a lieutenant of General McClellan's staff and afterward serving as Provost Marshal for the City of Washington, D. C., in which capacity he guarded the white House and won the personal thanks of President Lincoln for the efficient manner in which he executed his duties.

Lincoln presented him with a sword suitably inscribed included in our collection

The Jones Collection Show Case at Mc Kendree College, Lebanon, Illinois

He subsequently, at the request of President Lincoln, organized nine regiments in the States of Vermont and New Hampshire, and in the northern part of the State of New York, and disbursed half a million dollars without the loss of a cent. He was active, too, in repelling the Confederate invasion into Pennsylvania, and his command had the honor of firing the last shot at the retreating forces of General Lee as they fled across Falling Waters Ford at Williamsport. He was severely wounded while at the front and lay in the hospital for several months, his disability being of so serious a type that he never fully recovered from its effects. He was appointed to a position in the United States customs service, upon leaving the army, and moved to Brooklyn N. Y. where he made his home during the balance of his life. Colonel Jones was one of the founders of the Republican Party. Always interested in politics, he was an energetic worker in the campaigns of that organization and was listened in party councils with the fullest respect. His services to the Republican cause were of the greatest value. He was frequently upon the stump and his eloquence as a speaker gained him a national reputation as one of the party's most effective orators. He nominated Col. Stegman for the shrievalty and was potent in his influence among the people at large, who respected him for his sterling worth and admired his high attainments. He was at one time post master of Williamsburg and would have been made Appraiser of the Port of New York, for which he had already been selected, had he not been defeated by one of those political deals which too frequently bar the right man from attaining the recognition justly due him. Colonel Jones was the founder of the Northwestern Female College in Evanston, Ill., an institution that he established and endowed with the money that he made in the California gold fields as one of the original 'Forty-niners'. In 1890, thru his efforts, the United States Volunteer Life Saving Corps was formed and though it was at first confined to the harbor of New York, it gradually extended its sphere of usefulness until it included all parts of the country. Before its founder's death, the organization had a membership of 14,500, all volunteers whose services were free, and in 1904 alone not fewer than 324 lives were preserved thru their instrumentality. Personally, Colonel Jones was esteemed for his unselfish work, for he sacrificed his private interests to carry on the cause of the Corps, the aid received from the authorities being but nominal and by no means adequate to the requirements of the service, which covers all the watching places, canals, lakes, and rivers of the State. Colonel Jones was a member of the Congress Club and an attendant at St. John's Methodist Church in Brooklyn, of which the Rev. Dr. David G. Downey is pastor. He was scholarly in his tastes, fond of art in its various forms, and besides a great reader, endowed with high mental power and rare intellect attainments, he was gifted and as an artist and might have won distinction in that field, had he seen fit or had the leisure to devote to it. He was married to Clara Jackson, daughter of Leonard Jackson, of Melrose, Mass., and a descendant of Leonard Serrat, a prominent figure in the early history of the colonies. Three children, two daughters and a son, were born to Colonel and Mrs. Jones as follows: Clara Ella, who became the wife of Henry N. Meeker, a well-known Brooklyn lawyer; Walter H. H., City Clerk of Melrose, Mass.; and Emily A., who wedded Joseph W. White, prominent in Brooklyn business circles as a leading fire insurance broker. Colonel Jones died at his home in Brooklyn, from the effects of a paralytic stroke, December 15, 1905.

for the story of Northwestern Female College, taken over by Northwestern University and grandfather Jones' part in the organization of Wellesley and Vassar Colleges.

The ages of College students in these days varied greatly — from grandfather Jones age 11 1/2 — Mark Twain's intermit studies at Mc Kendree College when approx. 12 — to Susan B. Anthony who at age 38 took summer courses at the Northwestern Female College

Notes

by the Compiler of The Crowell Chart

John Stephen Crowell, Springfield, Ohio.

" — Some parties claim that Edward Crowell came to America in the ship "Caledonia", in 1705, and settled at or near Blazing Star, which is now Carteret, Middlesex County, New Jersey. Others claim that two brothers Edward and John Crowell came to America and settled near Woodbridge, Middlesex County, N.J. in 1674 and afterward removed to North Carolina. If both statements are true there must have been two persons by the name of Edward Crowell. It is pretty well established that one Edward Crowell had a son Samuel B. 1711 also Edward had the children attributed to him between the lines marked "Second Generation."

"Jones Papers are Given To McKendree"

"An honored guest on The McKendree Campus last weekend was Mrs. John R. Voorhees (Stella Worth Jones) of Short Hills, New Jersey, who brought to The College a box of manuscripts, books, pictures and papers belonging to her family. Her grandfather, Col. J. Wesley Jones, was a student at McKendree for some years after 1836 when he enrolled as a boy of 11.

Included among the papers is a Civil War diary kept by Mrs. Voorhees' great-grandfather, The Rev. Wm. P. Jones, which records, among other things, the death of Lincoln.

Mrs. Voorhees was given a Certificate of Appreciation from the Alumni Association for her interest in McKendree."

Many Thanks Again

To President and Mrs. Max P. Allen and to Mr. & Mrs. Leon H. Church, Editors and Publishers, of "The Lebanon Advertiser" for their many courtesies from the moment my plane landed at the St. Louis Airport until my return plane took off for New York.

Appreciation also to Harrison Church for the photographs of The Jones Collection used in the front of this Series, and to Mr. Jarvis, Turner College Librarian, and Prof. Donald E. Lewis, Chair of Early American History who mounted the Collection.

The photograph used on the Cover, "Foot prints on The Sands of Time"

was taken at The Pagant: at The Opening of The Cape Cod Canal, Sandwich, Massachusetts, 1914. Modeled by S. W. J. V.

E. P. McLaughlin, Photographer, Plymouth, Mass. Used by Clifton Johnson in his Book "New England", Page 53.

When the Historical Record Book is printed, it will be a Picture Book, made up entirely of photo stats and photographs.

Then the remaining Originals pertinent to McKendree College, to the New York Historical Society, and to the New Jersey Historical Society will be given to them.

The colored picture on this page is added for no other reason than that we are so proud of our "Easter in November" Day - most unusual for New Jersey. It also happened to be the birthday of Yours Truly - S. W. J. V. - 75 Years Young.

Grateful thanks to Mr. Ralph Domenico, Metro Design Co., Springfield, New Jersey for his special assistance in publishing this material, and in designing our Cover page.

"Genealogy Can be Fun" - and a Headache - and an Education.

Have you ever tried to "Read Writin'?"

Is this an M or an H - ~ ~ ~ ? might this be an L or a T or a J or an S or a P?

- a 2 or a 4 - a P or a T - or a 7 or a 9?

You may start out as an Amateur, but you will end up as a qualified professional Hicogly-tologist!

A marriage date was given as 1784 or 1789. After hours of study, with a powerful Electric Light and a magnifying glass, the decision was made in favor of the 9. Later, when the next generation was being recorded, the first born child was in 1788, the 9 was hastily changed to a 7.

On the back of an old, brown envelope was scrawled "Who was Little Willie"? Well - Who Was Little Willie? Hours and days of research gave no clues. Weeks later, when reading over old Civil War letters, I came across the following - "Aunt Barry wrote to The State Department to have the body of Little Willie sent home -". Little Willie was William F. Barry, Killed in The Civil War, Aged 19. See Chart II, P 3, last Col.

An old scrap of paper in an unknown hand writing gave an almost illegible list of Meeker names. I did not know who they were or where to put them. I sent the paper to Genealogist Charles H. Meeker of Stamford, New York, for identification. It just so happened that he filled in a small open space in one of his many Meeker Lines.

Then there is the Merry-go-Round. Sisters and brothers named their children after each other: Carrie and Louise (1) were sisters. They named their children Louise and Carrie (2). Louise and Carry named their children Carry and Louise (3). How dizzy can you get?

Modern records have their problems. One child of the Younger Generation was recorded in three different places with a different middle name in each case. Another case, - That of a midnight birth. The mother claimed it was The day after, while the father claimed it was The day before.

Mistakes can be made in Copying, as well as in deciphering, and locating. These charts were copied over 3 times - first in regular fountain ink

2nd in permanent jet black ink, when off-set printing was being considered,

3rd in sharp, soft pencil on Architects' thin paper sheets for these run-offs.

Cheerio until we meet again, when The Book is printed.
